K2 recognized: "Outstanding Product of the Year"

– Technology and Learning Magazine

December 8, 2004. Technology & Learning magazine recently honored K2 - KeyAuditor & KeyServer with an Award of Excellence as one of the outstanding products of the year. K2 is a leading software asset management suite for automated software auditing, usage reporting, and real-time license compliance. K2 is used by commercial, educational, and government customers world-wide to manage computing assets at sites ranging in size from tens to tens of thousands of computers.

The "Awards of Excellence" honor is a prestigious 22-year-old recognition program from Technology & Learning magazine, the number one publication in educational technology. Winners of the 2004 Technology & Learning Awards of Excellence were chosen by more than 30 educator-judges who tested products for use in computing labs.

K2 integrates with numerous help-desk, procurement and IT management tools to provide detailed reports for software deployment, licensing and utilization, migration planning, and computing assets lifecycle management.

K2's extensive auditing and software management capabilities are built upon the rock-solid foundation of KeyServer's 15-year history of reliability and compatibility. K2 supports Windows, Macintosh, and thin-client computers in any networked or mobile computing environment.

Detailed descriptions and judges' comments are included in the December 2004 Awards Issue of Technology & Learning (<http://www.techlearning.com>).
